EASTERN WASHINGTON
RIPARIAN PLANTING
SYMPOSIUM

SPONSORSHIP KIT

ABOUT

The Eastern Washington Riparian Planting Symposium is gearing up for its annual iteration and we need your support!

Since 2017, Populus: The Columbia Basin Riparian Planting Partnership has been annually hosting the Eastern Washington Riparian Planting Symposium. The Symposium aims to bring together restoration professionals across eastern Washington and beyond to exchange knowledge and emerging science related to riparian planting. For the past several years we have continued to grow, averaging over 100 attendees from across the Pacific Northwest. In 2023 we expanded even more by offering year-round classes, workshops, and field trips which we have continued to offer in 2024.

Please consider becoming a sponsor today!

Attendees include practitioners, agency representatives, and others passionate about riparian restoration. Presentation topics span a wide range each year, from incorporating climate change data into project prioritization and planning to traditional cultural plants. Our Lessons Learned sessions give attendees a chance to discuss challenging projects and learn from each other.

The symposium is a great chance to support an educational and popular event and share your company's services with professionals in relevant fields.
